Homa Vafaie-Farley's pieces in this exhibition, have been created with various methods including diverse textured glazing techniques. Homa has been passionately involved with designing, creating and teaching pottery for many years. These unique pieces are the results of more than two decades of experience in working with clay, glazes and various glazing techniques and firings.

Homa's students are also exhibiting their varied and inspiring work during this exhibition. This group consists of many students from diverse backgrounds and nationalities, brought together through their love for clay and the art of pottery.
